

ESTABLISHED AUGUST 24, 1852.

The Intelligencer.

There are three malle per day each way between Wheeling and Wellsburg.

Tax personal property of Harrison county, Ohio, is assessed at $3,709,569.

The Washington county, Pa., reunion at Brown's Island, on the 23d of June, promises to be an extensive affair.

The strawberry growers around Barnesville say that W. Wellsburg is a better market for their shipments than Columbus, Ohio.

There is to be what the Wellsburg News calls a high-toned picnic at Bellevue Camp Ground, Brooke county, to-morrow.

The first honor of the graduating class of Washington College has been awarded to G. V. Alexander, of Kishacoquillo, Pa., and the second to F. B. Hallam, of Washington.

The Cadiz Republican does not take a hostile view of the wool market, and yet it knows of no reason why the price should not improve. It intimates that the farmers are too ready to accept such a market as may be made for them.

The election yesterday for Judge of our Municipal Court did not elicit a wide spread interest, and consequently the vote was not large. Ex-Mayor Jeffers, who is a rather reticent gentleman in the matter of the English language, had large returns, as it appeared, in other directions to draw upon, and hence had a comparatively easy victory.

Tax Children's Home makes a good showing in our columns this morning. There is no feature of the report more gratifying than the announcement as to the number of children that have been placed in good homes during the year. This is the crowning glory of the Home—the relief of so many little waifs from a life of vice, and placing them under good influences; thus offering them a future worth living for. Great credit is due to the many excellent citizens who have devoted themselves, at so much personal inconvenience and sacrifice, to this good work.

Political situation in Virginia is peculiar. Mahone and his readjusters want to be an administration party, and also a separate and independent party. It is a sort of necessity for them to be both, and yet it is impossible for them to successfully wear such a double-headed character. The Republicans, who have three times as many votes as the Readjusters, cannot afford to merge themselves into that party. Still the old case of the inability of the bill to go to Mahomed. The administration cannot afford to fall in with readjusterism and will not do it, and Mahone and his followers drop this issue that they are what they are, and what they are as a State organization? The Republican party is a debt paying party, and here lies the line that must inevitably separate it from Mahone in the coming Virginia canvass. As far as Mahone stands for the overthrow of Bourbonism in Virginia he is entitled to receive, and does receive, the sympathy of the administration and of the Republican party, but as far as his canvass turns upon readjusterism he is in a different boat. How to construct a party that will shoot around a corner is now Mahone's great embarrassment.

GOVERNMENT BOND ADVANCED yesterday to the unprecedented and unnatural price of 118. We say unnatural in the sense that such a price for a four per cent. bond is not only unknown in the history of this country, but contrary to all the experience and expectations of this generation. It results from a conjunction of circumstances that never had a parallel in the United States, and it is to be explained only by the great and increasing plethora of money. This plethora is best shown by the following table exhibiting the additions to our currency since July 1st, 1879:

Currency.	May 2, 1881.	Jan. 1, 1881.	July 1, 1879.
Gold.	$ 309,000,000	457,000,000	286,000,000
Silver.	25,000,000	25,000,000	25,000,000
Legal tender.	346,000,000	146,000,000	34,000,000
Notes.	341,500,000	341,500,000	22,222,197
Gold and silver.	1,000,000	1,000,000	1,487,500
Total.	$1,000,000,000	$1,000,000,000	$1,000,000,000

There is an addition to our currency of over forty-six millions since January 1st, and over three hundred millions since July 1st, 1879. Bank circulation increased five millions last month, but will show a much larger increase this month. Gold production is proceeding at the rate of about three millions monthly. One can scarcely expect to see speculation collapse in such a medium for supporting its life as this funds.

It is calculated that the Government will disburse $100,000,000 in cash this year in paying off the 6s and 5s extended at 31 per cent. Of this, $75,000,000 will be disbursed August 12 in payment for 5s.

The New York banks report for the first time in their history over $50,000,000 of specie. Notwithstanding the increase of deposits to $229,611,700—an amount far beyond all precedent—the banks hold in reserve $16,738,575 in cash beyond their legal requirement. So great is the accumulation of unemployed money that the deposits, as reported actually exceed the loans, although the latter fall scarcely below the largest return ever made—the $206,970,000 of Nov. 13, 1880.

An Unlucky Man's Cruise Dead. GADSDEN, Tex., May 26.—The New York special from Bonham, which states that, on Saturday, upon Mr. Child's promising vessel his son's driving over the growing crop, the young man dealt his father a blow on the head with a weight, inflicting fatal injuries.

Mr. Garrison quite comfortable. WASHINGTON, May 26.—Mr. Garrison is daily improving. Her fever continues, but is a much milder form, the fevered sleep last night, and is very comfortable today.

HARD TO TELL

WHETHER CONKLING IS UP OR DOWN

Randomly Inconsistent Stories from Albany—A Report no Sooner Circulated Than Denied—Speech in the Senate Against Him.

ALBANY, May 26.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Woodin presented a remonstrance against the re-election of Conkling and Platt, and made a speech in its support. He said that it was presumable that the reasons publicly announced by Conkling and Platt for their resignations are the best and all that can be given, and if so history will award to them the credit of having committed the most stupendous blunder of modern times. Their action has not the extenuating merits which charity awards on account of mistake or error of judgment. It evinces neither wit nor wisdom, nor sense nor cunning. Though not altogether a thoughtless act, it is absolutely barren of statesmanlike purpose.

Stripped of all immaterial matters with which the resignations have skillfully invested the subject, the case may be stated with absolute truth as follows: The President, at the expiration of his unexpired constitutional prerogative, nominated for the office of Collector of the Port of New York, a distinguished citizen of this State, without first consulting Conkling and Platt.

THE POWER AND DUTY OF THE PRESIDENT IN REGARD TO NOMINATIONS is not a divided one. He cannot with due regard to his oath and his honor, and such is the true intent of the Constitution. The act of confirmation or rejection is the act of the Senate alone, and the President has no voice in the matter. That duty has been performed fearlessly, independently and with proper regard to his official oath, which he must observe. Our Senators would have done their whole duty if they had remained at their posts and voted conscientiously to confirm or reject. That duty thus performed would have been a fair and honest one.

PARALYZED ALL CRITICISM, and they would have stood before their constituents justified and honored for their courage and independence.

Mr. Woodin ridiculed the idea that self-interest demanded their resignations, and asked why it did not occur to the senior Senator that self-interest required him to desert his post when President Hayes appointed Everts a member of his Cabinet and removed Merritt. No one or two men are essential to the life of the Republican party. No man or set of men can do it.

Mr. Woodin made an eloquent plea against the return of the Senators, saying that to send them back is to say "We justify and defend you in your indictments of the President. He concluded as follows:

THESE REMONSTRANCES are but a faint expression of the popular voice which speaks under the inspiration which led to the brilliant achievement at Chicago. It will not and cannot be suppressed. Neither principles nor power, no thing, shall prevent the return of the Senators. The people of this State desire Conkling's return to the Senate as he understands the interests and needs of the State. The speaker gave a resume of the appointment of Robertson as Collector of the Port. The resignations have forced us to consider the question of the return of the Senators in their views of Republicanism? The Senators here refuse to go into a caucus because they assert the right to their individual views. Shall we maintain the integrity of our organization? If not the position of those who refuse a caucus is rapidly becoming untenable. When the public voice is in its reality, and find there is no reader hands to sustain the administration than those who have borne aloft the standard, the resignations will be looked upon as a heroic act, and the return of the Senators to the Senate will be solely because in the exercise of my best judgment, I believe the interests of the party should be supported, and because these new heroes shall not prevail. Conkling cares not whether he will or will not return, and he will not be returned, but he would like to have his principles maintained. He is too great a man to be controlled by circumstances, and whatever may be the issue, it will not be the last of Roscoe Conkling should repeat his name in caucus when such proceedings were secret? Conkling and Platt are willing to go to the rear at any time, should it be so desired. They are a noble, patriotic and hearty desire to act for

CONKLING AND ARTHUR

Love Each Other Like Brothers, and Have Had No Misunderstanding.

New York, May 26.—An Albany special to the Graphic says: Speaker Sharpe says that the story concerning a quarrel between Senator Conkling and Vice President Arthur is absolutely false. Nothing of the kind ever occurred, nor has there been any event of a nature to suggest such a report. The story is simply ridiculous. No man wins possession more absolutely of the affections and affection, and no man has shown that he was more deserving of both. The story is pure invention. In an interview with Messrs. Conkling and Arthur in regard to the stories published concerning the quarrel, they both expressed their indignation at the story, and said: "There is absolutely no

CONKLING AND ARTHUR

Love Each Other Like Brothers, and Have Had No Misunderstanding.

New York, May 26.—An Albany special to the Graphic says: Speaker Sharpe says that the story concerning a quarrel between Senator Conkling and Vice President Arthur is absolutely false. Nothing of the kind ever occurred, nor has there been any event of a nature to suggest such a report. The story is simply ridiculous. No man wins possession more absolutely of the affections and affection, and no man has shown that he was more deserving of both. The story is pure invention. In an interview with Messrs. Conkling and Arthur in regard to the stories published concerning the quarrel, they both expressed their indignation at the story, and said: "There is absolutely no

A CITY OF THE DEAD

GHASTLY RECAL OF THE STORY OF THE DISASTER TO THE VICTORIA EXCURSION—Many Whole Families Destroyed—A Community Wrapped in Gloom.

LONDON, Ont., May 26.—The bodies still unclaimed are being enclosed in shells and removed to the drill house, where they can be visited by friends in search of missing ones. The story of the disaster, as given by witnesses who were on board, shows that the vessel was on her last trip, and that on setting out from Spring Lake to return to the city had nearly all her passengers on the way down, and in addition a large number who were waiting on the wharf to be conveyed home. The number on board on the return trip is said to be 700, a burden out of all proportion to the strength and capacity of the vessel. Shortly after passing the Woodland cemetery the boat began to rock and the crowd surged from side to side with each oscillation, rather enjoying the fun than being in any way alarmed. The passengers stood and watched the boat as it rolled, and a number of youths on the upper deck took delight in keeping up the rocking motion by moving from side to side, while others shouted gleefully, "Let her sink, we will only have to move to shore." It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

The crowd surged from side to side, and with each movement of the vessel she took an increasing quantity of water, which was being poured over the sides of the boat, and the danger of capsizing was becoming more and more imminent. The danger now seemed to be a question of time. The boat was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the crowd was now on the verge of a final oscillation, and the danger now seemed to be a question of time.

It is said that some, though denied by others, that the officer in charge endeavored to induce the passengers to remain quiet, but his efforts were unavailing.

CHURCH COUNCILS.

MEETINGS OF SEVERAL CHURCHES

In National Assembly—The Northern and Southern Presbyterians, and the United Presbyterians—A Scotchman's Heresy.

THE UNITED PRESBYTERIANS.

The Twenty-third General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in North America was held last evening in the First U. P. Church, on Union avenue, Allegheny. The preliminary devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. B. Dales, D. D., of Baltimore, after which the opening sermon was preached by Rev. E. T. Jaffar, D. D., President of Westminster College and Moderator of the last General Assembly.

Pittsburgh is the birthplace of the United Presbyterian Church. In 1853 the two branches of the church known as the Associated Presbyterian and the Associated Reformed Presbyterian Churches, were united under the name of the United Presbyterian. The General Assembly is the Supreme Court of the church, and its authority extends over the United States and Canada. There are sixty-one Presbyteries in North America, which are subject to the jurisdiction of the General Assembly, and a membership at the time of the last report of 81,000 congregations and but little less than a million communicants.

The present is the second session of the General Assembly that has been held in this city, the first having been in 1868. The number of commissioners that reported last evening is 227, 115 being ministers and 112 laymen.

One of the most important questions that will come up for discussion will be the use of instrumental music in the churches. At present this is strictly prohibited.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN.

A Protest Against Sending Fraternal Greetings to the Northern Church.

STANTON, Va., May 26.—At the session of the General Assembly to-day Dr. Mulaly presented a formal protest to the action of the Assembly in sending fraternal greeting to the Northern Assembly. The protest insisted that the Northern Assembly should have taken the initiative, as that body had wronged the Southern church and that the wrong was yet unatoned for. Another reason given was that the signers opposed any tendency to surrender the distinctive independence of the Southern church. The protest was signed by Drs. Mulaly, Patterson, Fletcher, D. L. Young and George White, and was admitted to record. The moderator appointed a committee to prepare a reply. The retrenchment and reform question was decided against the reformers—123 to 3. A protest against the action of the Assembly was entered by Rev. Taylor Martin, of the church from which he had been deposed. The committee on revision of the book of worship, Dr. Adger, Chairman, presented a report of the many alterations made in the revision, the most important the omission of all the forms, except the burial service used, which a minister is permitted to use at his discretion. The report elicited considerable debate. No definite action was had. The judicial case of W. S. Turner was decided in favor of the appellant, by a vote of 90 to 22. Adjourned.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY.

Important Proceedings at Yesterday's Session.

BUFFALO, May 26.—In the General Assembly to-day the resolution condemning the optimistic tone was opposed by Dr. Brier, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on Indians, appointed by the last Assembly, was read by Elder W. C. Gray, editor of the Interior. The committee reported the enactment of laws in the States of California, of San Jose, California, as an attack on the Chinese, and was finally defeated. The question of the use of fermented wine at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, was left to church sessions to determine what was bread and what was wine. This was the only question of a condemnatory polygamy was adopted.

The report of the special committee on